India-Latvia Relations

Relations between India and Latvia are warm and friendly, based on shared commitment to democracy. Popular interest in Indian culture among the Latvian people has strengthened ties. Bilateral contacts date back to the time when Latvia was part of the Soviet Union and had a twinned status with Rajasthan. India recognized Latvia as a sovereign and independent state on September 7, 1991 and established diplomatic relations on 25 February 1992. The Latvian Government opened its Embassy in New Delhi in January 2014. The Indian Mission in Stockholm is concurrently accredited to Latvia.

Political Relations

Since establishment of diplomatic relations, there have been a number of visits from Latvia to India. The latest visit from Latvia to India was by Prime Minister of Latvia Mr. Māris Kučinskis from 2-6 November 2017. This was the first-ever visit at Prime Ministerial level between the two countries. Latvian PM and delegation participated in the "World Food India 2017" in New Delhi. PM Kučinskis met Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi on 3 November 2017. Both leaders held discussions on various aspects of bilateral ties as well as important regional and global issues of mutual interest and focused on building closer cooperation in the areas of trade & investment, food processing and culture, among others. During the visit, the Protocol amending and supplementing the Agreement between India and Latvia relating to Air Services was signed. PM Kučinskis called on the President of India in New Delhi on 3 November. A 16-member business delegation from 7 Latvian companies participated in World Food India 2017. PM Kučinskis visited Mumbai from 4-6 November. He also held meeting with the Governor of Maharashtra.

Consequent to Latvia's accession to the EU, Indian companies can access the EU market through investment in Latvia. Its geostrategic location as a potential gateway to the CIS countries as well as Russia along with its excellent all weather ports add to the potential. Taking these factors along with the investment friendly policies of the Latvian government and the recent steady economic growth which saw Latvia emerge as the fastest growing member of the Euro-zone, Latvia offers good opportunities for Indian firms. However, investments in both directions are below potential. As per Latvian Register of companies, till 2013, there were 87 Indian companies registered in Latvia but the total investment is only about US $ 1 million. Potential areas of investment from India include pharmaceuticals and healthcare, telecommunications, IT and software development, heavy engineering and biotechnology. Cumulative figures of Latvian FDI in India are less than US $ 0.1 million. There is a proposal for setting up a temperature-controlled cold storage and ware-house facility in the free port of Riga for which the Embassy is already in contact with APEDA for them to partner with M/s Bhandar. It is expected to promote Indian exports to Latvia and its neighbouring regions including Russia, CIS and Nordic countries.

Cultural and Educational Relations

Under the Cultural Exchange Programme for 2006-08 between the two countries, and even after it was put on hold in 2008 at Latvian Government's request, several Indian cultural troupes have performed in Latvia; mostly sponsored by the Indian Council for Cultural Relations.

Latvians have been regular beneficiaries of ITEC training programmes, the courses for foreign diplomats offered by the FSI as well as scholarships provided by ICCR.

The University of Latvia has established a "Centre for Indian Studies and Culture" which was formally inaugurated on 9 September 2013. It is organizing Yoga classes and Hindi classes as well as other activities to promote India. The University of Latvia and several other Latvian Universities are keen to establish collaborative relations with Indian Universities as well as to receive students from India. Seven Universities came together to open a Study in Latvia Centre (SLC) in Chennai in February 2014.

Promotion of Ayurveda in Latvia

There is promising potential for promoting Ayurveda and Yoga in Latvia. Both are popular and seen as ways to improve holistic healthcare. Further, the University of Latvia has been very supportive. As a result, the University of Latvia, in collaboration with the Arya Vaidya Pharmacy, Coimbatore (AVP, which has received a grant as Centre of Excellence from AYUSH Ministry), has been conducting a 3-month Diploma course in Introduction to Ayurveda since February 2015. The students are mainly qualified allopathic medical doctors. The University also wants to offer higher level courses. It organised an international scientific forum titled 'Fostering Latvia-India Cooperation', dedicated to cooperation between Latvia and India in the field of research and education, including Ayurveda, on 28-29 May 2015. Other efforts to promote Ayurveda in Latvia include on-going translation into Latvian language of a book on Ayurveda which could be used as a text book, proposal to set up an Ayurveda Chair and an Ayush Information Cell at the University of Latvia; and a joint study on Type-2 Diabetes.

Indian Community

There is a small Indian community in Latvia numbering around 1000 and mostly engaged in business activities. This includes around 800 Indian students studying medicine and technical courses in Latvian Universities. Number of persons of Indian origin is about 40.
